

Spell-caster vs. Spell-caster

When a spell is cast at another who possesses the same spell, the higher level caster will have a magic immunity of 3% per level against his or her opponent.

Example:

If a 17th level character casts a magician spell at a 26th level magician, who possesses the same spell, the higher level caster will have a 9% chance of not being effected by the spell.

The level difference $\times 3 =$ the % chance to not be effected by a lower level spell-caster's magic (if you have the same spell).

This applies to all types of magic, BUT THE HIGHER LEVEL CASTER MUST HAVE THE SAME SPELL.
