THE TRUE HEALER

There are some instances in which a True Healer will have gained so much favor with Arial Anarias, that a 100% chance to succeed will be granted. This is not uncommon for Healers who refuse the choice to take life, even when he or she has the right to do so. Many times (and this is very common among these purist Healers) the Maiden Weapon will be gifted to such by Arial Anarias, or one of her servant Herald personally.

Even more, if a True Healer takes on the status of Assassin, Magician, Warrior, or any other paths, he or she can verbally claim the right to the Path of The True Healer by merely stating it aloud in a supplication to Arial Anarias, who will hear and respond to this prayer 100% of the time (unless the person offering such a prayer is of the status of Unholy, or is a murderer at heart).

The response will not usually be a personal visitation, but a mere feeling of peace within the mind and heart. This is known as truth, and you will know it to be truth by such a feeling as cannot be denied.

If a True Healer then follows this path a miraculous thing will occur: Any spell cast, or any weapon strike dealt out by the healer WILL NEVER SLAY his or her opponent at any given time. BUT, just before this happens, the Healer will feel a prompting within that will ask the following question: "Do you wish your foe to live?" The Healer has to do is will his or her foe to live and not die (AND IT WILL BE DONE ACCORDING TO THE WILL OF THE "TRUE HEALER" -- even if he or she has done an incredible annihilation strike or even buried a foe with, let's be extreme, a mountain!) Death will be denied the fallen one with no exceptions but one; another person finishing the fallen off (and if this is manipulated by the True Healer in any way shape or form, this ability will fade forever pending a trial from Arial Anarias herself.

Question:

What if I cause fire to rain down upon my would be killer, and my spell would kill it, but then I am knocked unconscious? What is my foe dies and I did not have a chance to even make a choice?

Answer:

If it is out of your hands, this Divine Favor will make the choice for you. Your foe will not die. Also, you may gain the favor of Divine Protection as well. See: "Divine Protection"
