

Nature, Explanation of:

Awareness level

The Awareness level of nature, whether it be an earthquake, tornado, tidal wave, etc., will determine the natural feeling of a nature occurrence. The higher the awareness level, the more in tune with its surroundings it will be.

Nature has 3 levels of awareness, or sense of being, explained as follows:

Awareness level #1

Completely dormant.

Nature does not think, meditate, see, or hear as mankind does.

It follows the laws of a non-perceptive life.

Awareness level #2

Semi-perceptive.

Nature thinks and meditates within itself only.

It senses, or feels, only by what it touches.

That which nature physically touches can be perceived and communicated with (if it wills).

Awareness level #3

Perceptive and intelligent.

Nature can hear and see as mankind does.

It has wisdom and intelligence to meditate, think, ponder, and make thoughtful decisions.

It can converse audibly if it wishes (though this be a strange form of communication).

%Roll: Random Awareness level:

01-33: Level #1

34-67: Level #2

68-00: Level #3

This is a chart, just in case you need a randomization of a nature occurrence.

Note:

G.M.: For now, you must do with this as you see best. In time, rulings will be created specifically for nature.
